Dear Mr Brinkmann,

Your listing for a plumber / sanitary and heating technician caught my attention because it describes exactly the mix I have been working in for twelve years: installation quality at the pipe, and a calm, orderly handover in front of the customer.

Since 2018 I have run a small two-person crew in Wroclaw: full bathroom renovations, boiler swaps and radiator upgrades, leak repair on occupied sites. Before that I spent seven years on new-build and refurbishment sites, where I learned to solder, to press, and to keep the work area safe and clean around tenants.

My German is at B1 level from two seasons of cross-border installation crews; I understand instructions on site and can talk a customer through the handover, and I am currently taking an evening course to reach B2. I am used to working in a two-person team and to representing the firm politely and reliably at the customer's home.

I would be glad to bring this routine to your Berlin crews.

Kind regards Marek Kowalczyk
