Dear Ms Vogel,

After fifteen years restoring antique furniture in Florence, I have moved to Berlin for family reasons and would like to continue my craft with your company - in restoration, service, and the fitting of fitted furniture.

My workshop years taught me care and quality at a level that is hard to learn quickly: reading the material, preparing surfaces, working with safety around finished and often irreplaceable pieces, and handing work back only when it is right. Clients rely on us with their most valuable furniture, and being reliable with dates, quotations and schedules was the basis of our reputation.

At the workshop I worked alongside two colleagues for many years, so teamwork in a small crew is familiar to me, and I enjoy communicating with clients about options, costs and care of their pieces. My German is currently at an early stage - I attend a B1 course twice a week and use every opportunity to practise - so I would initially fit best where technical skill matters most and customer dialogue can grow step by step.

I would be glad to demonstrate my craftsmanship in a practical trial.

Sincerely, Marco Bianchi
